

Online Session 2: Critical Thinking Task 2

Deciding on a project can be difficult. There might be aspects of this so far you find interesting, and you may also find this not interesting!

Either way, it is important that you value the process of creating this poster. You will be required to research and analyse, critically think, write in an academic style, and present and discuss your finding at the graduation event. Each are essential skills that you must develop and feel confident using for when you begin your studies at university.

Before the end of this session, you will have needed to:

1. Decide on what you will be in your poster.

Will that be everything you learned plus your own research?

A specific type of fuel cell and its breakdown?

How hydrogen powers the future?

2. Shared your ideas with others so that everyone can feel confident in starting their poster.

Some might find the process difficult; others might find it easy. Help each other in starting off.

3. Fill in this Google form.
